Michael Myers might seem like a pretty cool person because he entertains you with fictional acts of violence. Little do you know that there are men who make Myers look like an intern when it comes to mindless murders.

Most of them still live amongst us... laughing, smiling, and greeting you good morning every day.

During the time I wrote this book, researches took me from a popular serial killer who found it fun to tease authorities after every brutal homicide to the lesser-known mad man who would leave his victims in bits and pieces scattered across the city. Just when I think it can't get any more twisted, something new pops up to leave me to shell shocked.

Home and abroad, these people exist to become a menace to society and some do pass on into legend. You will find that even across the pond and across the border, they have got their fair savages that run wild undetected.

This book, Serial Killer Unsolved Crimes, is an insight into some of the most brutal and unsolved serial killings. You will find yourself shocked and perhaps appalled with the method employed by these unknown individuals and the sickness that thrives in their minds:

- Bible John who went for women that had been menstruating and sexually assaulted them before strangling them with a ligature
- Cleveland Torso Murderer whose signature move was to kill victims by decapitation and then dismember them with expert clean cuts

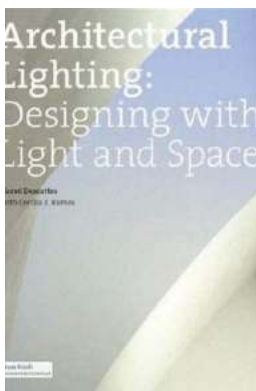

- Freeway Phantom who had a pattern of abducting, raping, and killing female African American children and teenagers on their way of running errands
- Highway 16 Killer who showed special preference for indigenous women living along the stretch of Highway 16, British Columbia, Canada
- Alphabet Murderer who had a thing for young female girls who were killed and then dumped in a town that shared the same initials with their names
- Servant Girl Annihilator who had a taste for African American women and picked ax as his weapon of choice
- And much more...

Take a trip into ten of the most notorious serial killers in history who eluded justice. Try not to scream.
