Building Blocks of Arpeggios

Before we dive into the licks, let's understand the building blocks of arpeggios. An arpeggio is a broken chord, meaning you play the individual notes of a chord separately, in a sequence. The most common arpeggios are the major, minor, and dominant arpeggios.

Major Seventh Arpeggio (R-3-5-7)

To the major triad (R-3-5) you can add an additional major third above the 5. Doing so will add the major seventh scale degree (7), a half step below the octave R.

R-3-5-7 are the chord tones of a major seventh arpeggio:

C major seventh arpeggio (Cmaj7)

The half step between 7 and the octave R will be presented in blue

Thinking in terms of the stacked thirds, the major seventh arpeggio is:

MAJOR THIRD + MINOR THIRD + MAJOR THIRD

Cmaj7 arpeggio

Each arpeggio consists of specific intervals between its notes, giving it a unique sound. By understanding these intervals, you can create and modify arpeggios to suit your musical preferences.

100 Arpeggio Licks

Now that you have a solid foundation in arpeggios, it's time to dive into the meat of this article - the 100 arpeggio licks! These licks are designed to challenge your technical abilities and push you out of your comfort zone. Whether you're a beginner or an advanced player, these licks will give you plenty of material to work with.

Lick 1: Major Arpeggio Sweep

Tab notation: E|-----15h19p15-----|

Explanation: This lick utilizes a sweeping technique to play a major arpeggio across multiple strings. Practice the timing and accuracy of your pick strokes to achieve a smooth and fluid sound.
