

Being Ahmadi Muslim In The Holy City Of Qadian

Qadian, a small town in the Indian state of Punjab, holds great historical and spiritual significance for Ahmadi Muslims around the world. It is the birthplace of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad, the founder of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community, and is considered a holy city for Ahmadis.

The History of Qadian

Qadian was chosen by Mirza Ghulam Ahmad as the center of the Ahmadiyya Community in 1889. He believed that it was divinely destined to be the place where his mission would prosper. The town has since become a hub for Ahmadi Muslims and a symbol of their faith.

Despite its small size, Qadian attracts thousands of Ahmadi Muslims from all over the world who come to visit the holy sites and connect with their spiritual roots. The city is home to various mosques, including Masjid Aqsa, Masjid Nur, and Masjid Mubarak, where Ahmadis gather for prayers, religious ceremonies, and spiritual guidance.

Living as an Ahmadi Muslim in Qadian

Being an Ahmadi Muslim in Qadian offers a unique experience. The atmosphere is filled with a sense of unity, devotion, and religious fervor. Ahmadis living in Qadian feel a strong connection to their faith and are dedicated to upholding its principles.

Ahmadis in Qadian actively participate in community service and charitable activities. They work towards promoting peace, love, and understanding among different religious communities. The teachings of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad, emphasizing the importance of serving humanity, are put into practice in various social welfare projects carried out by the community.

Living in the holy city of Qadian also means being surrounded by other like-minded individuals who share a common vision and mission. The sense of belongingness and unity among Ahmadi Muslims is palpable. They support each other in times of need, celebrate religious festivals together, and engage in intellectual discussions to deepen their understanding of Islam.

The Challenges Faced by Ahmadi Muslims

Despite the religious harmony and unity within the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community in Qadian, Ahmadis face challenges in various parts of the world due to their beliefs. The theological differences between Ahmadis and mainstream Muslims have led to persecution in some countries, where Ahmadis are considered non-Muslims.

This discrimination and persecution extend beyond geographic boundaries and affect Ahmadis on a global scale. However, in Qadian, Ahmadis can freely practice their faith without the fear of persecution, ensuring a safe haven for believers.

Preserving the Legacy of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad

Qadian serves as a constant reminder of the profound impact Mirza Ghulam Ahmad had on the world of Islam. The city is not only a pilgrimage site for Ahmadis but also a beacon of inspiration for those who wish to understand the Ahmadiyya movement and the teachings of its founder.

Ahmadis in Qadian work diligently to preserve the teachings and legacy of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad. They study his writings, engage in theological discussions, and actively participate in religious seminars and conferences. This commitment ensures that the rich heritage of the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community remains alive and continues to inspire future generations.

Being an Ahmadi Muslim in the holy city of Qadian offers a unique and spiritual experience. The close-knit community, the historical significance, and the devotion to the teachings of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad all contribute to a profound sense of belongingness. Despite the challenges faced by Ahmadis in various parts of the world, Qadian stands as a symbol of religious freedom and unity for the Ahmadiyya Muslim Community. It is a place where faith is nurtured, and the legacy of Mirza Ghulam Ahmad is cherished.

How do you prove that you're Muslim?

This is not a question that most believers ever have to ask themselves, and yet for members of India's Ahmadiyya Muslim Community, it poses an existential challenge. The Ahmadis are the minority of a minority—people for whom simply being Muslim is a challenge. They must constantly ask the question: What evidence could ever be sufficient to prove that I belong to the faith?

In Far from the Caliph's Gaze Nicholas H. A. Evans explores how a need to respond to this question shapes the lives of Ahmadiis in Qadian in northern India. Qadian was the birthplace of the Ahmadiyya community's founder, and it remains a location of huge spiritual importance for members of the community around the world. Nonetheless, it has been physically separated from the Ahmadiis' spiritual leader—the caliph—since partition, and the believers who live there now and act as its guardians must confront daily the reality of this separation even while attempting to make their Muslimness verifiable.

By exploring the centrality of this separation to the ethics of everyday life in Qadian, Far from the Caliph's Gaze presents a new model for the academic study of religious doubt, one that is not premised on a concept of belief but instead captures the richness with which people might experience problematic relationships to truth.
