2. The Unusual Friendship Between a Cat and a Parrot

In a quiet neighborhood, there lived two unlikely best friends – a mischievous orange tabby cat named Whiskers and a talkative parrot named Oscar. Their friendship was something out of a fairy tale. Whiskers loved to play hide-and-seek with Oscar, while the parrot entertained the feline with its hilarious impressions of popular TV characters.

One afternoon, a local resident overheard Whiskers and Oscar engaged in a deep conversation. As it turns out, Whiskers was teaching Oscar some basic cat phrases, while Oscar reciprocated by revealing his secret talent for imitating meowing sounds. The sight of a parrot trying to imitate a cat's meow was both adorable and comical.

3. The Outrageous Encounter with a Sassy Squirrel

When strolling through a park, the last thing you may expect is an unexpected encounter with a sassy squirrel. One sunny afternoon, Jim, an avid park enthusiast, found himself at the center of such a spectacle. As he sat on a bench and munched on a delicious sandwich, a squirrel decided to join him, demanding its rightful share of the treat.

The squirrel, who appeared to possess an almost human-like glare, stood upright on its hind legs and boldly extended its tiny paw towards Jim's sandwich. Surprised but amused, Jim couldn't help but offer a small piece. To his amusement, the squirrel snatched it away and scampered up a nearby tree, seemingly victorious in its quest for snacks.

4. The Hilarious Mishap with a Slippery Seal

Imagine embarking on a serene boating trip along the coast when suddenly, you find yourself in an unexpected encounter with a playful and slippery seal. That's exactly what happened to a group of adventure enthusiasts on a warm summer day.

As the boat glided through the sparkling waters, a curious seal emerged from beneath the surface. With a mischievous grin on its face, it performed a perfectly timed jump that landed right on the boat's deck, sending the passengers into a fit of laughter. Unable to resist the temptation, the seal playfully slid around the slippery surface as if it were the sea itself.

Bubbles had an uncanny ability to style the hair of both humans and other animals, making it a popular attraction among the townsfolk. A mixed-breed offspring of Marley and Me and All Creatures Great and Small, His Name was Brownie is your next book for fun. Peopled with multiple Marley dogs (and Marla's as well), nearly all readers will recognize their dog or cat, son or daughter, spouse--maybe even themselves--as the featured characters barrel their way through their laughable adventures. Collies and Irish wolfhounds bound through the pages; but they have many companions, including a tuxedo cat, a mastiff, a demented border collie, two Siamese cats, two twenty-five pound attack cats, the monkey from Hell, a Labrador retriever nicknamed "Blockhead" because of his habit of getting his head stuck in plastic milk cartons, black witch moths, and a bufo. Their escapades take them through beautiful areas of Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Hawaii, before the clan finally lands in Wisconsin near the Wisconsin River.

Dr. Judi Roller has been breeding and showing collies and Irish wolfhounds for many years, garnering AKC championships for her dogs and several group placements along the way. She has also enjoyed judging multiple AKC matches. Her previous book, The Politics of the Feminist Novel, won an Outstanding Academic Book award; and she has published literary criticism as well as book reviews and occasional poems and a short story. Her B.A. cum laude was earned at Bowling Green State University, and her doctorate came from the University of Michigan, even though she is a home-grown Ohio State Buckeye, which became a challenge while she was teaching Freshman English during her graduate work at Michigan. Now retired from university administration, she has more time for dogs, golf, travel, bridge, and reading. Website is rivendellcolliesandirishwolfhounds.com for author blog and reader reviews.
