In this article, we will discuss everything you need to know about west facing house plans according to Vastu Shastra and provide you with some incredible tips and ideas to create your dream home.

Why is Vastu Shastra Important for West Facing Houses?

Vastu Shastra is an ancient architectural science that originated in India. It offers guidelines and principles for designing buildings to promote positive energy flow, prosperity, and well-being. According to Vastu Shastra, different directions have specific energies associated with them. When it comes to west facing houses, incorporating the right elements and following Vastu principles can help balance these energies, leading to a more auspicious and harmonious living space.

The Significance of the West Direction

In Vastu Shastra, each cardinal direction has its own unique characteristics and influences on different aspects of life. The west direction is associated with the element of water, symbolizing movement, emotions, and relationships. It is also linked to the planet Saturn, which represents discipline, hard work, and stability. When designing a house facing west, it is crucial to harness these energies effectively, ensuring a positive impact on the occupants' lives.

The Main Considerations for West Facing House Plans

When creating a house layout for a west facing property, several primary considerations should be kept in mind. By adhering to these Vastu principles, you can maximize the flow of positive energy and create a blissful living environment:

1. Entrance: The main entrance should ideally be in the northeast or northwest direction to invite positive energy into the house. It is recommended to avoid locating the entrance in the southwest, as it may lead to financial and health-related issues.
2. Living Room: The living room or the main gathering area should be planned in the northeast or northwest corner of the house. This promotes social interaction, happiness, and overall well-being for the family.
3. Bedrooms: Bedrooms should be located in the southwest or south direction to ensure tranquility and harmonious relationships. Avoid placing bedrooms in the northeast corner, as it may disrupt sleep and bring unnecessary stress.

4. Kitchen: The kitchen should ideally be positioned in the southeast corner of the house. This encourages the flow of positive energy and abundance. It is essential to keep the kitchen clean and clutter-free to maintain good health and prosperity.
5. Bathrooms: Bathrooms should be constructed in the northwest or southeast corner of the house. Ensuring proper ventilation and hygiene in bathrooms is vital, as it contributes to the overall well-being of the occupants.

Incorporating Vastu Principles in West Facing House Exterior

While the internal layout is crucial for implementing Vastu principles, the exterior design of the house also plays a significant role. Here are some additional tips to ensure Vastu compliance in the overall aesthetic and construction of a west facing house:

- Facing: Ensure the main entrance faces west, bringing a harmonious flow of energy.
- Windows and Ventilation: Place windows in the northern and eastern walls to enhance natural light and air circulation.
- Garden or Greenery: Create a beautiful garden or green space in the northeast corner, allowing positive energy to flow into the house.
- Driveway: Design the driveway or parking space in the northwest corner to attract success and prosperity.
- Water Features: Incorporate a small water feature like a fountain or pond in the northwest corner to enhance positive energy flow.

In summary, designing a west facing house according to Vastu Shastra principles can have a profound impact on the happiness and overall well-being of its occupants. By carefully considering the placement of rooms, entrances, and exterior features, you can create a harmonious and auspicious living space. Remember, a well-designed home brings joy, prosperity, and positivity to everyone who resides within its walls. So, make sure to incorporate Vastu guidelines when planning your west facing house, and watch as your dream home becomes a reality!
