

Old Home Love Candis Meredith: Bringing History Back to Life

With the rise of modern and cookie-cutter homes, there is a growing movement to preserve the beauty and charm of older homes. Candis Meredith has become a prominent figure in this movement, showcasing how old homes can be transformed into stunning and livable spaces.

As a child, Candis developed a deep love for history and architecture while exploring the streets of her small hometown. The sight of dilapidated homes filled her with a sense of curiosity and wonder. Little did she know that these childhood experiences would shape her future career.

After getting married and starting a family, Candis and her husband Andy decided to embark on their own renovation journey. They purchased an old home in a historic neighborhood, hoping to restore it to its former glory. The couple faced numerous challenges, from dealing with outdated systems to preserving original features. Despite the difficulties, Candis fell in love with the process.

Candis and Andy decided to document their renovation journey on social media, creating the Old Home Love blog and Instagram account. Their transparency and authenticity resonated with thousands of people who were also passionate about old home restoration. Soon, their project caught the attention of HGTV, and "Old Home Love" became a television series.

What sets Candis Meredith apart from other home renovation experts is her dedication to preserving the unique elements of each home she works on. She firmly believes that old homes have a story to tell and that it's her job to honor that history. Whether it's salvaging original woodwork, reusing vintage fixtures, or carefully restoring architectural details, Candis prioritizes maintaining the integrity and character of the houses she works on.

One of the most remarkable aspects of Candis' work is her ability to seamlessly blend classic design with modern functionality. She understands that, while historical homes are treasures, they can sometimes lack the amenities that modern families need. Candis expertly finds a balance between preserving the past and incorporating contemporary conveniences, resulting in homes that are both visually stunning and practical to live in.

Through her show, Candis has inspired countless people to embrace the beauty of old homes and take on restoration projects of their own. She regularly shares tips, tricks, and resources on her platforms, empowering others to dive into the world of historic home renovation.

Furthermore, Candis has shown that old homes have the potential to be sustainable and eco-friendly. By repurposing materials, utilizing energy-efficient solutions, and implementing green design principles, she demonstrates that preserving history can go hand in hand with protecting the environment.

It's no surprise that "Old Home Love" has gained a dedicated following. The show not only provides viewers with a glimpse into the fascinating world of historic home renovation but also reminds us of the value in preserving our architectural heritage.

In a world driven by trends and new developments, Candis Meredith and "Old Home Love" serve as a reminder that beauty can be found in the past. Through her passion and expertise, Candis has become a leading authority in the restoration of old homes, inspiring others to embark on their own journeys of historical preservation.

Get to know the couple (and the houses) behind Old Home Love.

Andy and Candis Meredith believe there's nothing that can't be fixed. Their passion for saving and renovating old homes, which caught the attention of HGTV, sparked the creation of their new reality series, Old Home Love.

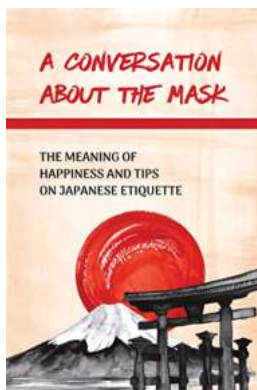

Their stunning debut book features never before seen images of more than 15 homes, (including their own, renovated by the couple themselves), do-it-yourself renovation tips and guidance, and their family's story. Old Home Love will inspire readers to discover the history and beauty behind their own homes, regardless of location or style.

Andy and Candis Meredith take dilapidated houses from the 1800s and restore them to their original beauty for future homeowners to cherish for years to come. They live in Payson, Utah with their six little boys and baby girl in tow.
