I have always had a love for words and poetry. Throughout my life I always used the medium of poetry as a means to express the unspoken and to find healing in the parts of myself that remained locked and hidden away. In this chaotic world of our society I always found peace and release in turning to my creativity. I hope you derive inspiration from this book of poems that have all seemed to be written at turning points on my own journey in life. I write to express my experiences, and, in doing so, I find peace.
