

The Hidden Art Deco Sculptures of London: Unveiling a Forgotten Gem

London, a city renowned for its architectural marvels and artistic heritage, is a treasure trove of hidden gems waiting to be discovered. While the city boasts famous landmarks like the Big Ben, Tower Bridge, and Buckingham Palace, there is a lesser-known aspect of London's art scene that deserves attention - its stunning array of Art Deco sculptures. These intricate and elegant sculptures represent a significant period in the city's history, and exploring them can be a truly enchanting experience.

Art Deco, a popular design style prevalent during the 1920s and 1930s, is characterized by its bold geometric shapes, lavish materials, and intricate ornamentation. These sculptures became an integral part of London's architectural landscape during this era, adorning buildings, bridges, and public spaces.

Unveiling the Hidden City Guides

Thanks to the efforts of passionate art enthusiasts and cultural organizations, a series of hidden city guides have been created, solely dedicated to London's Art Deco sculptures. These guides serve as a roadmap to the most exquisite and lesser-known Art Deco sculptures spread across the city.

'London's Art Deco Sculpture' is the newest ebook by author Gregory Edwards, and while the ambience is still on Art Deco architecture, the subject matter has shifted to the sculpture that sometimes accompanies it. The human form is the main feature of this volume (a second part is expected), not surprising as sculpture has always had the human figure as its most important component. There is an examination of London's major architectural sculpture programmes, then separate chapters examining various aspects of the human figure in mid-war architecture. This was the last great style where sculpture was associated with architecture, the early modern phase. 'London's Art Deco Sculpture' is profusely illustrated, and also includes addresses for all the buildings referred to so readers can make their own Art Deco discoveries in the open air sculpture gallery of the city.
