Local legends say that the Fair Time For Death dates back centuries, originating from an ancient curse cast upon the village by an embittered witch. According to the curse, every ten years, the village will bear witness to a death during the fair, as a reminder of the witch's wrath. The fair then becomes a twisted homage to this mysterious curse.

Authorities have tirelessly investigated the Fair Time For Death, but no concrete evidence has ever been found. Some skeptics believe that it's all an elaborate hoax, carefully orchestrated by the villagers themselves to attract tourists and bring attention to their otherwise tranquil village.

However, many villagers vehemently deny these claims, stating that the fair is indeed a unique and unexplainable event. They speak of eerie occurrences, unexplained phenomenon, and strange happenings that suggest something otherworldly is at play.

During past Fair Time For Death events, various theories and rumors have emerged. Some claim that a secretive cult uses the fair as a cover to carry out their rituals, while others believe it to be the work of a psychopath with a penchant for deadly games.

Regardless of the true origin and nature of the Fair Time For Death, it has become an event that draws thrill-seekers from all over the world.
