However, amidst the darkness that surrounds this case, there is an untold story that has remained hidden for decades - the story of Nina, a potential victim who managed to escape the clutches of Brady and Hindley.

Who was Nina?

Nina, whose real name is protected for her privacy, was a young girl who crossed paths with Brady and Hindley during their killing spree. She was lured into their devious plans, but through a series of fortunate events, managed to evade becoming another victim.

Due to the sensitivity of the case and ongoing investigations, Nina's identity has always been carefully guarded. Her testimony, however, sheds light on the extent of Brady and Hindley's depravity and the fear that gripped the public during that time.

An Encounter with Evil

Nina's chance encounter with Brady and Hindley began innocently enough. They approached her one day, posing as a seemingly harmless couple, and struck up a conversation. Their charisma and manipulative tactics lured Nina into a false sense of security, unknowingly leading her into the web they had spun.

Brady and Hindley's ultimate goal was to involve Nina in their sinister deeds. They attempted to groom her, exploiting her vulnerability and trust. However, Nina's keen instinct raised her suspicions, and she started questioning their intentions.

The Escape

One fateful day, as the pressure mounted and her intuition screamed danger, Nina mustered the courage to escape. She found an opportune moment when she was briefly left alone and seized it, running as fast as she could from her captors.

Her escape was nothing short of a miracle, as Nina knew Brady and Hindley's unforgiving nature towards those who crossed them. She believed that they would come after her, regardless of how far she ran.

Living in Fear

Following her escape, Nina lived in constant fear for the rest of her life. Constantly looking over her shoulder, she endured the psychological trauma of knowing that the Moors Murderers were still out there.

Due to the untold story of Nina, the police were able to gather additional evidence against Brady and Hindley. Her testimony provided crucial insights into their modus operandi and helped to build a solid case against them.

The Legacy of Nina

Nina's bravery and survival instill hope in the hearts of many, reminding us that even in the face of evil, resilience can triumph. While the Moors Murders case will forever be marked by tragedy, Nina's escape sheds light on the strength of the human spirit and the determination to survive.

Today, Nina continues to live a private life, her identity concealed for her safety. Her story serves as a chilling reminder of the evil that exists in the world but also as an inspiration for those who refuse to let darkness prevail.

In

The untold story of Nina, a potential victim of the Moors Murders, unveils the horrors experienced by those targeted by Ian Brady and Myra Hindley. Her escape, though hidden from the public eye for many years, played a crucial role in the pursuit of justice.

The Moors Murders remain a dark chapter in British history, but we must never forget the victims, the survivors, and the untold stories that shed light on the true extent of the horrors perpetrated by these criminals. Nina's courage and resilience deserve to be honored and remembered.

Since May 1966 when Ian Brady and Myra Hindley were sentenced to life imprisonment at Chester Assizes the British public has been absorbed and horrified by the Moors Murders. Ian Brady has often been aptly described as ‘the most evil man alive’ or ‘the Daddy of the Devils’, while Myra Hindley, Britain’s first female serial killer, became the most hated woman in Britain.

Here is the definitive account, drawing on exclusive, never-before-seen material. It changes forever our understanding of the Moors couple and their heinous crimes. Why did they do it? What actually happened? Unlikely as it may appear to those detectives, psychiatrists, authors, criminologists, journalists and the victims’ families, who have all sought in their own ways for decades to discover it, this book is possibly as near as we shall ever get to understanding how the victims died. It proves beyond question that the parents of the victims were right all along in their claims about Hindley’s part in the murders. Did Brady give an account to anyone of his life, Myra Hindley and their crimes before he died? Yes, he did - here it is.
