1. Reduced Competition

In most cases, poker players are more active during evening and nighttime hours. Therefore, playing in the late morning can mean fewer opponents and less competition. This increases your odds of winning and allows you to exploit the weaker players who may have just started their day.

2. Fresh Perspective

Waking up late can give you a fresh perspective and a clear mind. You might have had a good night's sleep or simply feel more relaxed and focused. This state of mind can be an advantage when it comes to making rational decisions at the poker table. You can approach the game with a calm and collected mindset, increasing your chances of success.

3. Unique Table Dynamics

The late morning poker tables often have a distinct mix of players. You might encounter recreational players looking to unwind before their busy day begins, or professionals who prefer playing during off-peak hours. This combination of opponents can create unique dynamics and exciting opportunities for you to exploit.

4. Improved Availability

Playing poker before noon means that you have the rest of the day available for other activities. Whether you want to pursue your hobbies, spend time with loved ones, or take care of errands, you can do it all without feeling rushed. You have the luxury of enjoying your poker session and still having plenty of time for other things.

Tips for Winning at Late Morning Poker

Now that you understand the benefits of late morning poker, here are some tips to maximize your chances of winning:

1. Develop a Strategy

Before you start playing, develop a solid poker strategy tailored to the late morning environment. Consider the unique player dynamics during this time and adjust your approach accordingly.

2. Be Mindful of Fatigue

Waking up late might mean you've missed out on proper breakfast or feeling drowsy. Stay mindful of any fatigue or hunger, as these factors can affect your decision-making abilities. Take regular breaks and make sure to fuel yourself with energy-boosting snacks.

3. Observe and Adapt

Pay close attention to the table dynamics and the playing styles of your opponents. Adapt your strategy accordingly and capitalize on any weaknesses or tendencies you notice.

4. Manage Your Bankroll

Since late morning poker can be less competitive, it's crucial to manage your bankroll effectively. Avoid getting comfortable and playing recklessly. Stick to your plan and make calculated decisions.

5. Enjoy the Game

Remember to have fun! Poker is not just about winning; it's also about the thrill and enjoyment it brings. Embrace the late morning sessions as a unique experience and savor every moment.

So, if you're someone who struggles to wake up early, don't fret! Playing winning poker before noon can offer its own advantages and excitement. With reduced competition, a fresh perspective, unique table dynamics, and improved availability for other activities, late morning poker sessions can be a winning move. Just remember to develop a solid strategy, be mindful of any fatigue, adapt to the table dynamics, and manage your bankroll effectively. Most importantly, enjoy the game and savor the experience!

This may be one of the last poker books written on limit hold 'em.

See, Limit Hold 'Em is alive ... but not well.

As I write this only the Bellagio poker room—Most Prestigious Poker Room in the World, some say—regularly spreads anything bigger than 15/30 in all of Las Vegas, Nevada—Gambling Capital of the World. And the games are not necessarily jam packed with limit hold 'em enthusiasts. A few years back the Bellagio used to spread very robust 15/30 and 30/60 games; the room in 2011 was dealing 10/20, 20/40 and 40/80 games that didn't always break attendance records.

The No Limit game that broke everybody decades ago, and also broke itself in the process, is back in town in a bigger way than ever. Blame the tournament circuit, online poker, the World Series, poker on TV, the recession, whatever...

Newbies play No Limit, no...t Limit.

Limit Hold 'Em may be going the way draw and stud have already gone.

So why another book on Limit?

Maybe it will come back...

And maybe because when I started playing poker more seriously in Las Vegas thirty years ago I read everything there was to read—and kept right on reading.

And whatever I read I condensed into a series of simple, concise notes made for my own learning. The simpler, the better I liked it. My notes became Some of the Best Things I have ever Heard...

Yes ... I let some of my poker buddies have copies of my notes. Why in heck not?

What are poker buddies for? And some of them were flattering enough to suggest that I should publish them. Some others begged me not to publish these notes at all and to share them no further. Real poker players will be real poker players ...

Right?

There is little new in Wake up late, read This ... Play Winning Poker before Noon.

But, no, this is not a 'beginner's' book. And it will only remind you of what you already know—or should know, if you gave it a thought. Or should remember to remember next time ... In fact, it will tell you All You Ever Needed to know about Hold'em Poker—provided You Knew it Already.

So why bother ... if you already know all?

Well, I know writing these Notes helped me ... a lot. And some of my poker buddies say the notes even helped them too ... a lot.

Don't ask us why ...

Maybe the Notes are so simple as to appeal to poker simpletons ... like me and some of my poker buddies.

I would never have got around to publishing any of this but for my simpleton poker buddies, bless 'em. And but for Amazon-Kindle's Direct Publishing program too. This makes publishing an ebook very simple indeed.

Even for possibly The Last Limit Hold 'Em book ever published...
